ARCHBISHOP'S HOUSE
LAKE STREET
BRIGHTON, MASS.

May 28, 1945

Very Rev. William J. Murphy, S.J., President
Boston College
Chestnut Hill, Massachusetts

Dear Father Murphy:

This year the Boston College School of Social Work begins its tenth academic year of training students and serving the community. It has done both well; the proof of that is the manner in which it has maintained standards during a particularly difficult period for such schools.

The War provided many testing grounds for the graduates of the School. The period of post-war rehabilitation will present even more challenging problems. On every side parties, pressure groups, and other organizations are marshaling their forces in the field of Social Work. The Church must be no less militant and competent in this supremely important sphere.

Our own Archdiocese, as well as the civil authorities in this area, has manifested its intention to meet the problems of Social Work forthrightly. New Centers for Social Work are being formed. New approaches to social problems are being devised. Our programs must be soundly Catholic and completely scientific. There must be no compromise with principle and no cloudiness about our facts.

That is why the Boston College School of Social Work has so great a future in this locality. It must be at once Catholic and scientific. It must meet the challenge of turbulent times and rigorous competition. I am confident that it will.

With my blessing to the faculty and the students of the School, I am

Faithfully yours in Christ

+Richard J. Cushing

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

Student Organization

The students are organized according to classes, namely, the first-year group and the second-year group. Under the auspices of the student organization special meetings are arranged during the course of the year for the student body. The students also meet regularly with the Dean in a seminar; the purpose of this is to give the students an opportunity to discuss problems arising in educational process.

Caritas

Caritas, a quarterly publication, is edited and managed by the students and graduates of the school. Caritas is published four times a year, sc., in February, May, October, and December.

All students are required to subscribe to Caritas, which is $1.50 a year.

Alumni Association

Officers—President ..... Frederick Glynn
Vice-President ..... John Malloy
Secretary ..... Edna Sanford
Treasurer ..... James McSorley
Executive Committee—
Kathleen Barry
Patrick Ennis
Mary McCabe
John F. Roche

The Alumni Association participates in editing the publication "Caritas." The Alumni Association also has established a tuition scholarship. Membership dues are $2.00 a year. Formal meetings are held twice a year for all of the Alumni, namely at Christmastime and in May. Monthly meetings are held regularly in Boston for those living in the vicinity. Committees are appointed to serve on special projects during the school year.

GENERAL STATEMENT

Foundation of the School

The Boston College School of Social Work was founded in March 1936. The Trustees of Boston College, in keeping with the Jesuit tradition, decided to institute a program of graduate training calculated to prepare young men and women for the profession of social work. To Reverend Walter McGuinn, S.J., was given the task of forming the policies and concrete program of this distinctly Catholic School of Social Work. A faculty was recruited from the professional field; social agencies throughout New England, both public and private, have offered their resources for field work training. The first class was admitted in September 1936. At the end of the required probationary period the school was admitted to full membership in the American Association of Schools of Social Work. The School is offering training in Medical Social Work. The course of study has been approved by the American Association of Medical Social Workers. In 1948 the course of study in Psychiatric Social Work was approved by the American Association of Psychiatric Social Workers.

The Field of Social Work

The fields for which the School of Social Work prepares its graduates are the fields of public and private social work. There are three major divisions of social work, i.e., Social Case Work, Social Group Work and Community Organization, with Social Research as an essential part of each division. From recent studies made by various national associations there is evidence of a definite shortage of trained social work personnel in all fields of social work.

Social Case Work

Social Case Work is primarily concerned with helping individuals who present social problems arising from within the environment or within their own personal lives in order that they might function more adequately and with more responsibility for their actions. Many of these problems have their roots in economic insecurity. Domestic discord, family disorganization, parental neglect, delinquency and a host of other problems come to the attention of the social case worker.

There are many opportunities for graduates in the public and private agencies concerned with problems of families and children. There is an increasing demand for professionally trained workers in child-placing agencies, children's institutions, medical and psychiatric clinics and hospitals, and family service agencies.

Social Group Work

Social Group Work is primarily concerned with helping the individual in his personality development through the group process. Social group workers are employed in settlements, neighborhood clubs, youth organizations, etc.

Community Organization

Community Organization, while having the same motivations as case work and group work, namely, interest in, and a desire to help people, concerns itself with the organization and adjustment of community forces and services for the purpose of improving social and health conditions.

In social work some agencies such as Community Chests and Councils have "Community Organization" as their primary function, while others may use the community organization process in furthering their primary function of "Case Work" or "Group Work."

Opportunities for practice of Community Organization are found in community chests, councils of social agencies, and neighborhood councils, as well as in other organizations, both public and private, which promote and plan health and welfare programs on national and state levels, or as consultants to such agencies.

Professional Education for Social Work

Social Work education as at present organized is conducted on a graduate level, and the training program consists of theoretical courses given in the classroom and in practical clinical experience under careful supervision in a recognized social agency. In the second year the student is given an opportunity to choose his field of special interest in which he will deepen his educational experience in social work.

Inasmuch as social work is an art as well as a science, considerable emphasis is placed on the formation of definite professional attitudes on the part of the student. An art can be learned only by doing, and the test of a professional school for social work is largely its capacity to afford the student an opportunity to grow professionally through a carefully guided two years' experience. In the classroom he learns the historical setting and grasps the larger philosophic implications of the dynamic world in which he lives. He acquires the intellectual equipment and understanding of skill and techniques. Through frequent conferences and consultations his outlook is broadened, his social work sense is sharpened, his sympathy is enkindled and judgment is purified. In his field work he actually meets the challenge of the family on the "top floor rear" with many variegated repetitions and with a constantly increasing awareness of what is actually needed in the situation.

During the course of the two years, the student is expected to develop an attitude of critical analysis which is tested very definitely through research on the subject matter of his specialty, submitted as partial requirement for the Master's Degree.

The Philosophy of Social Work

While Boston College is fully aware of the importance of professional and academic standards, it cannot be unmindful of its responsibility as a Catholic institution. Hence, the School of Social Work is very definitely committed to the intention of impregnating the curriculum with the principles of Christian philosophy. In doing so, the School feels that its program is meeting many of the needs of the professional field. Besides imparting a sound social work philosophy, the Boston College School of Social Work aims very definitely at the spiritual development of the student.

Mere scientific knowledge and technical skills are insufficient equipment for the work. To carry on effectively in this field, the worker needs strength of character, a keen insight into spiritual problems and a solid spirituality; even from a professional standpoint, there is every reason for this insistence on the things of the spirit. A trained social worker with strong supernatural motives and with a clear perspective on life will bring to the task at hand an influence which is sorely needed today. A keen realization of the fact that "life is more than the meat and the body more than the raiment" will enable him to approach the problems of human living with a clearness of vision and a tenacity of purpose. Conscious of the dignity of his fellow man and aware of his supernatural destiny, he is bound to bring into his treatment techniques a sympathy, an earnestness and a perserverance, the therapeutic effect of which will be immeasurable.

The School then purports to accomplish two very definite tasks: First, a synthesis of Catholic principles and social work techniques and, secondly, an enriching of the prospective social worker with a substantial spirituality.

Educational Program of the School

Basic Program for Full-Time Students

The program of the Boston College School of Social Work is organized to meet all the professional requirements. The School purports to give its students a sound professional training. For students entering the school on a full-time basis the training period consists of four semesters' application. Beginning students are admitted in the fall semester of each year. The School limits its enrollment and selects its applicants with an eye to the needs of the professional field.

Academic Courses—	Points required	36—40	points
Field Work	Points required	20	points
	(Credit per semester	5	points)
Thesis	Points required	4	points

Academic Courses

The educational program of the School is devoted to the acquisition of fundamental knowledge and skills which are basic to all forms of social work practice with an opportunity for a study in the field of one's special interest during the second year. In order to effect this purpose various methods are employed, such as the lecture method, classroom discussion and special projects.

Field Work

The field work program of the School is carried on in close correlation with the classroom instruction. At the beginning of the first year full-time students meet with the Regent, the Dean and first-year faculty advisors in a series of lectures and discussions that serve as a basis of orientation to the field of social work with specific emphasis on the educational process. The first-year student is placed in a case work agency where training in generic case work is given. Second-year students are assigned to agencies in their fields of special interest.

The field work program is under the jurisdiction of the School and plans of training are worked out with the field work instructors who accept the responsibility of teaching the students. The purpose of the field work course is to develop in the students by actual practice not only a knowledge of the current practices and skills, but a personal appreciation of the various refinements of professional practice. In other words, it is expected that he shall acquire not only the science of social work, but the art of social work as well. To effect this purpose more securely, various means are devised by the School and by the agencies. Students present monthly analytical reports to the Field Work Department of the School. The evaluation of these reports forms the basis of discussion with the student in his conferences with the School Faculty Advisor. Each student is given a Faculty Advisor and the student is required to have conferences with him on a monthly basis.

Meetings of the Field Work Instructors are held regularly at the School, at which meetings principles and practices in training are discussed. Bi-monthly visits to the agencies are made throughout the year by the School Faculty with the result that an individualized program of training for each student is assured.

The full-time student is expected to give seven hours each of the field work days to the agency where he has been placed and will remain with one agency during the school year. The student must have experience in two distinct fields, 650 clock hours in each field, a total of 1300 hours. Students who are placed in psychiatric clinics are required to complete 100 additional clock hours in practice.

Although the field work program must be fulfilled in its entirety as to clock hours, the importance of the time span in professional growth is recognized by the School; and, therefore, the full-time student is required to train within an agency on a two-semester basis of fifteen weeks each. It is recognized that at times the student will be expected to give overtime service when requested by the agency. While with the agency the student is expected to comport himself as a professional person and meet the demands of the agency with the professional responsibility of a regular staff member.

Regularity and promptness in carrying out field work assignments is demanded of all students. In case of inability to report for field work it is the student's responsibility to notify the agency supervisor at the beginning of the working day, if not before. The student is also expected to report this absence to the Director of Field Work within the week.

Thesis

The candidate must submit two typewritten copies of an outline of a thesis on a subject chosen in consultation with the faculty on or before November 1st of the academic year in which the degree is to be conferred. The body of the thesis must be not less than 15,000 words and must be either typewritten or printed and substantially bound.

Two copies on prescribed paper, and meeting the requirements of the format, must be submitted on the designated day of the year in which it is planned to take the degree. The title page must bear the words: "Submitted in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Social Work in the Boston College School of Social Work," and the full title of the thesis, together with the full name of the candidate. There should be typewritten or printed and appended to each thesis in the form of a Vita, a statement of the place of birth of the author, or the educational institutions which he has attended, and a list of the degrees and honors conferred upon him, as well as the title of his previous publications.

ORGANIZATION OF CURRICULUM

First-Year Program

The Curriculum of the First year is basic and generic in character; the focus is placed on giving the student a thorough grounding in the profession. Therefore, courses required of the first-year student are generic, and field work placements, in a case-work agency, are required of all students.

Courses required in the first year are as follows:

	Points
Social Case Work I	2
Medical Information	2
Social Aspects of Medicine	1
Psychiatric Information I	2
Public Welfare Services	2
Child Welfare	2
Social Case Work II	2
Psychiatric Information II	2
Community Organization	2
Social Research Methods	2
Principles of Group Work	2

Field Work: The first-year student is placed within a private or public family or children's agency and is given training in generic case work practices.

Second-Year Program

In the second year the student pursues his study in his chosen field of interest not only as to course selection but also with respect to his thesis subject and field work placement. The areas of special study offered by the School are: Social Case Work, with training for Family Case Work, Child Welfare, Medical Social Work, and Psychiatric Case Work; and Community Organization.

Social Case Work

Courses required of all students in the field of Social Case Work with emphasis on Family Case Work, Child Welfare or Psychiatric Case Work:

	Points
Philosophy of Social Work	2
Social Welfare Administration	2
Psychiatric Case Work	2
Child Guidance	2
Social Case Work with Children	2
Psychosomatic Medicine	2
Family Economics	2
Social Implications of Mental Testing	2
Labor Problems & Relations	2

Field Work: In the second year students are placed in the Family, Children's or Psychiatric field according to the student's special interest. If the student has had his first-year placement in the Family field, he will be required to have his second-year placement in either th Children's or the Psychiatric field. If he has had his first-year placement in the Children's field, he will be required to have his second-year placement in either the family or Psychiatric field.

Thesis

The student will be expected to choose a subject in his field of special interest and, if at all possible, the study should be qualitative in nature with material drawn from the agency where the student is practicing.

Psychiatric Social Work

Students majoring in Psychiatric Social Work are required to take the following courses:

	Points
Philosophy of Social Work	2
Social Welfare Administration	2
Psychiatric Case Work	2
Seminar in Psychiatric Social Work	1
Child Guidance	2
Social Case Work with Children	2
Psychosomatic Medicine	2
Family Economics	2
Social Implications of Mental Testing	2
Labor Problems & Relations	2

Thesis

The student will be expected to choose a subject in the field of Psychiatric Social Work. This study should be qualitative in nature with material drawn from the agency where the student is practicing.

Medical Social Work

Students majoring in Medical Social Work are required to take the following courses:

	Points
Philosophy of Social Work	2
Social Welfare Administration	2
Advanced Medical Information	2
Medical Social Case Work I	2
Medical Social Case Work II	2
Psychosomatic Medicine	2
Family Economics	2
Community Health Services	2
Labor Problems & Relations	2

Field Work: The Medical Social Work student is placed in a hospital or clinic under the supervision of a Medical Social Work supervisor for his second year of training.

Thesis

The student will be expected to choose a subject in the field of Medical Social Work. This study should be qualitative in nature with material drawn from the agency where the student is practicing.

Community Organization

Community Chest and Council Administration — Courses required:

	Points
Social Welfare Administration	2
Philosophy of Social Work	2
Community Organization II	2
Community Chest & Council Administration I	2
Social Work Interpretation	2
Community Chest & Council Administration II	2

Community Health Services 2
Labor Problems & Relations 2

Field Work: The student is placed in a qualified Community Chest or Council.

Thesis

The student will be required to make a study involving inter-group relations in terms of a community's attempt to meet changing conditions.

Program for Part-Time Students

The School admits a limited number of part-time students. Only persons who are employed in the field of social work will be admitted on this basis.

Part-time students are classified in two categories; those who are taking courses in order to further their professional development and those who are interested not only in further professional development but who are also interested in acquiring a Master of Social Work degree. If a part-time student wishes to acquire a Master of Social Work degree he will be required to give one year of residence in the School and must complete two field work placements under the School's supervision. At the time the student wishes to enter the School as a full-time student his application will be reviewed by the Board of Admissions. Such a student can acquire only twenty credit points in course work on a part-time basis and the program must be completed within a five year period.

Each student has a faculty advisor whom he is expected to see during the semester regularly. The purpose of these conferences is to discuss the integration of course material with work experience and also to discuss further education of the student.

Field Work: A student who has taken courses on a part-time basis and who enters the School as a full-time student will be permitted one field work placement on a block-of-time plan. The student must give sixteen weeks to full-time field work practice and will be required to give full-time, namely thirty-nine hours a week, to the agency where he has been placed. If the student wishes a Psychiatric placement he will be required to give six months in practice. Ten points in credit can be obtained in a block field work placement.

GENERAL INFORMATION

Location and Facilities

The School is situated at 126 Newbury Street, in the Back Bay of Boston, easily accessible from the North, South and Back Bay stations and sufficiently near the center of the social work activities of the City. The School is located on the third floor of the building.

The Library, which has been developed specifically to serve the needs of the School, contains a noteworthy collection of books, documents, pamphlets and periodicals touching all aspects of the fields embraced by the curriculum. The facilities of the Boston Public Library, the State House Library and many special libraries also are available to students of the School.

Boston and its environs offer splendid facilities for educational pursuits, and the social work organizations of the city afford an ideal training ground for prospective students. The School does not maintain residence halls for students, but information concerning residence facilities can be had on application to the Office of the Dean.

Admission Requirements—Full-Time Students

Admission to the School is determined by two factors: Academic preparation and personal fitness for the work.

Academic

Candidates for the Master of Social Work degree must present a baccalaureate degree from an accredited college, with an undergraduate background of at least twenty semester-hours in Social and/or Biological Sciences; i.e., such courses as Economics, Ethics, History, Political Science, Sociology, Psychology, Education and Biology. A transcript of the college grades must be submitted, and a good average must have been maintained throughout the entire course. Students contemplating the Medical Social Work field must present a minimum of six semester hours in Biology, Anatomy, Physiology, Chemistry of Foods, and Nutrition.

Persons with a valid educational background, i.e., individuals who have received degrees in Education or Law, may be admitted to the regular program as candidates for a professional certificate. Candidates for the certificate must meet the same requirements in course as candidates for the Master's degree.

Personal

The applicant must give evidence of good health, emotional balance, mental maturity, high moral purpose and scholarly habits. It must be clear from the outset that the applicant has a wholesome and genuine interest in people, is temperamentally suited for the work and in general is possessed of a character and disposition that will make for leadership in the field. Persons under twenty-one years and over thirty-five are not accepted, save for special reasons. References are required from four individuals who know the candidate, two of whom must be members of the Faculty where the student completed his college courses or two references from employers. A personal interview is required for each applicant before acceptance. This requirement will be waived for immigrant students desiring to enter the United States for graduate studies. A health certificate from a physician designated by the School will be required before admission. The fee for this service is $5.00, payable before the examination.

Application for Admission

Application for admission is made on a form which may be obtained by communicating with the Office of the Dean. Once the application has been received, notice will be given concerning the filing of an official transcript of college credits, and an appointment will be made for the required personal interview. If the applicant lives at a distance from Boston, the School arranges for a competent person within the community to interview the student. The admissions Committee will be influenced in its selection of a candidate by the academic and professional record of the student as well as by his personal qualities. Notice of the Committee's decision will be sent to the applicant at the earliest possible opportunity. Applications should be filed by June 30 of each year.

Registration

Applicants who have been accepted on a full-time basis will be expected to deposit with the School, within two weeks of their notification of acceptance, the sum of $25.00 as a pledge of intention to register. This deposit is ordinarily non-returnable and will be credited as partial payment of the first semester's tuition. Students will register in person at the School on the registration days listed in the School Calendar. Registration in person on the specified days is also required of all students in each and every semester of enrollment. Failure to comply with this regulation entails a Late Registration Fee of $5.00.

Advanced Standing

Academic courses or supervised field work completed in other accredited graduate schools of social work prior to enrollment in the School may be accepted as Advanced Credit when they are in substance the equivalent of similar training offered by the School, and if these courses have been completed within a five year period prior to admission. Professional experience as such is not accreditable. All Advanced Credit is potential, and as such is granted only upon satisfactory completion of other requirements.

Part-Time Students

Admission to the School is determined by two factors, academic preparation and fitness for the work. In other words, the same requirements hold for part-time students as for full-time students with the exception that the School will admit a limited number of special students to courses. Such students will be selected on the basis of their employment in social work and their interest in further professional development. A Bachelor's degree will not be required in such instances. However, no credit will be granted to the student, although such a student will be expected to complete all the requirements of the course.

Schedule

The academic year will open with registrations on September 13-17, 1948, and will close May 27, 1949. Classroom instruction is given on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of each week, while Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays are devoted to Field Work Practice. Classes are held throughout the day.

Further details may be learned by consulting the School Calendar on page 5.

Unit of Credit

The unit of credit in academic courses is the point (semester hour). A point represents one academic hour a week of classroom instruction per semester. One credit point in field work represents the equivalent of 65 hours of supervised practice.

Examinations and Grades

Credit for any course will not be given until the student has satisfactorily completed the full requirements of the course for the semester. The semester grade is determined by averaging the two quarterly grades with the final examination grade. The passing grade is 65%. A failure to attain an average of 65% in the quarterly grades renders the student incapable of taking the final examination. Failure to attain 55% in the final examination constitutes a failure. Students who are conditioned (55%-64%) in the final examination will be permitted to take one re-examination. Students marked "failed" must repeat the course to obtain credit.

Special students are required to complete course work. Although credit can not be granted, grades will be given.

Requirements for Degree

The degree of Master of Social Work is granted upon the satisfactory fulfillment of the School's requirements, provided the prescribed program is completed within five years from first registration. Should the candidate fail to receive the degree within the time prescribed, all claims or rights to continue working for a longer period for the degree, or to have any or all of his work already accomplished credited in fulfillment of the requirements for the same degree, are ipso facto forfeited and annulled. The requirements for the degree are as follows:

Credit Points

A total of sixty to sixty-five credit points:—

36-41 points in courses
30 points in field work
4 points for thesis

Residence

A minimum of 29 points (15 in course, 10 in field work, and 4 for the thesis) must be earned in residence at the School.

The requirements for the Master's degree are as follows:

1. Attainment of at least a grade of 75% as the combined average of all courses.
2. Participation in a prescribed Thesis Seminar.
3. Presentation of an approved thesis, which is accepted by two of the three final examiners.
4. A successful defense of the thesis in an oral examination in the second semester of the second year.

Requirements for the Certificate

A certificate is granted upon the satisfactory fulfillment of the School's requirements provided the prescribed program is completed within five years from first registration. Requirements for the certificate are the same as those for the degree.

Tuition and Fees

Tuition for Full-Time Students

The tuition is $400 a year with $10 for registration fees. The tuition each semester is $200 with a registration fee of $5; hence, $200 is payable by check or money order at time of registration. The $25 fee paid by first-year students as a deposit is credited against the $200 in the first semester. Tuition for blocked field work will be $70 for one semester, $140 for two semesters with a $5 registration fee.

Tuition for Part-Time Students

The tuition is $25 a course with a $5 registration fee for each semester. The tuition is payable by check or money order at time of registration.

Special Fees

Master's Diploma (due May 15th of 2nd year)	$15.00
Certificate (due May 15th of 2nd year)	15.00
Thesis Seminar (due November 1st of 2nd year)	$20.00
Reading of Thesis (due March 15th of 2nd year)	25.00
Binding two copies of Thesis (due May 15th)	5.00
Medical Examination (due prior to examination)	5.00

Other Fees

Late Registration Fee (as noted in Calendar)	$5.00
Each Re-Examination
(due with written application)	5.00
Each record of transcripts after first	5.00
(due with application)	1.00

Regulations Concerning Fees

All fees, unless otherwise noted, are payable at time of registration each semester. Checks or money orders should be made payable to Boston College School of Social Work. No consideration will be given to applications for refunds unless the student has given written notice to the Dean of withdrawal from course.

Where illness, physical disability, or any extraordinary circumstances require a student to leave, he may file with the Dean a written statement of the causes of such withdrawal. The "date of withdrawal" is the date on which the student has actually notified the Dean. Thereupon the College will take into consideration the equities of the case, but in no event will any registration fee be returned. There will be no refund for withdrawals after the sixth week. No credits will be released until after all financial obligations have been met.

Placement of Graduates

The School conducts an informal placement bureau to obtain positions for its graduates and to promote their interests. All members of the Alumni Association can register with this service and will thus be informed regarding available positions. The School has many more requests for workers than it can possibly meet.

Scholarships

Candidates for all scholarships must meet the regular requirements of the School.

George P. O'Conor Scholarship

The Proparvulis Club Scholarship is offered for a period of two years and is subject to the requirements agreed upon by the Dean of the Boston College School of Social Work and the Scholarship Committee of the Proparvulis Club. This scholarship covers full tuition.

This scholarship was established in memory of the Reverend George P. O'Conor, a former director of the Catholic Charitable Bureau, and the founder of the Proparvulis Club.

In making the award the Committee will consider any Catholic young woman in the Archdiocese of Boston who is eligible to enter the Boston Colege School of Social Work and who is interested in the cause of Catholic Charities. The financial status of the applicant also will be given consideration.

Father McGuinn Scholarship

This scholarship has been established in memory of Father McGuinn, the founder of the School, by the Advisory Council. This scholarship includes full tuition. Candidates for this scholarship must meet the regular requirements of the School.

Alumni Association Scholarship

The Alumni Association of the Boston College School of Social Work has established a tuition scholarship. Candidates for this scholarship must meet the regular requirements of the School.

Other Scholarships

The School also has a number of other full tuition scholarships for the current year. Applicants for these scholarships must meet the regular requirements of the School.

DESCRIPTION OF INDIVIDUAL COURSES

Social Case Work I.

An introductory course to acquaint the student with principles and methods in case work through discussion of case material presented by the students and instructor. Discussion will be centered on understanding the client, his problems, and the role of the case worker, with special emphasis on the beginning of the case work relationship at intake, and problems involving financial need.

Two-point course

Medical Information I.

This course is designed to give the social worker an understanding, first, of the normal functioning of the human body and second, of the deviations found in diseases. Special stress will be laid on the problem of chronic diseases, for example, cancer, tuberculosis, syphilis, diabetes mellitus, heart disease, chronic kidney disease, etc., inasmuch as these diseases present serious social problems. The resources for medical care available in the community, preventive medicine, public health laws and programs will be discussed.

Two-point course

Psychiatric Information I.

This course introduces the student to the concept of dynamic psychology, and describes the emotional patterns underlying much human thought and behavior. Bodily changes accompanying emotional states are stressed. The normal problems of childhood and their influence upon later behavior are discussed. The group of causative factors responsible for mental illness, both mild and severe, are studied. The Adlerian concept, the Freudian hypothesis, the works of Jung and Allers are considered.

Two-point course

Social Research Methods.

This course aims to give the student a working knowledge of the purposes and principles of social research and the methods through which such research is conducted. Current reports in the field of social work will be used as a basis for the study of the practical application of these methods.

Two-point course

Social Case Work II.

This course continues development of the basic concepts of dealing helpfully with persons in trouble. In order to heighten the students' awareness, reading and case material will be focused around specific case work problems or techniques, such as the use of authority in case work, the handling of the case work relationship at time of transferring or closing a case, current trends in case work thinking and the contributions of various schools of thought to current thinking and practice.

Two-point course

Psychiatric Information II.

This course, which is a continuation of Psychiatric Information I, introduces the student to the study of the various mental diseases. The major emphasis is placed on psychoses and neuroses. Special lectures are presented on such subjects as Alcoholism, Illegitimacy, Suicide, Epilepsy and Hysteria. Problems relative to the returned serviceman and his family are discussed. Ten lectures with opportunity for clinical observation are given at the Boston Psychopathic Hospital.

Two-point course

Community Organization I.

This course is designed to familiarize the student with the purpose, scope and methods of community organization as a social work process. The relationship of community organization to social planning, social action, social group work, social case work and social research will be discussed. Attention will be given to the work of agencies that have community organization as their major purpose, such as Community Funds and Councils, as well as to those in which it is a secondary function. The responsibility of the individual social worker for social action, as well as that of the social agency, will be considered. Concrete case materials will be used for purposes of illustration and discussion.

Two-point course

Labor Problems and Relations.

This course is directed toward aiding the social worker to understand the economic environment facing the wage earner and the labor problems arising from it. Wages and income, employment and security, industrial accidents, illness and working conditions will be studied, currently and as trends. Efforts to deal with these problems such as unionization, collective bargaining, legislation, personnel practice and insurance will be studied. The history and functioning of the labor movement and current labor-management relations will be considered with attention to political as well as economic factors. This course will be required of all second year students.

Two-point course

Child Welfare.

This course is designed to acquaint the student with the philosophy and development of Child Welfare in the United States and to encourage professional responsibility for its advancement through social thought and action. Consideration will be given to the ways in which the basic needs of all children are met through educational, health, recreational and child labor regulations. Particular consideration will be given to provision for the study and treatment of dependent, neglected, delinquent and illegitimate children in their own homes, foster homes and institutions. The administration of child care and protective programs through private agencies and public agencies functioning on Federal, State and local levels will be studied. Lectures will be supplemented by class discussion.

Two-point course

Social Case Work With Children.

This course is designed for students primarily interested in Child Welfare. Its contents include a study of factors disrupting family life and so precipitating a request for case work service with children either in their own home or in foster care. Emphasis is placed on the preparation of the child for placement, his reaction to it at varying age levels, different types of care offered such as institutions, boarding and adoptive homes, the selection of foster parents and the problems inherent in the termination of the placement process. Discussion is based on case material.

Two-point course

Public Welfare Services I.

This course is planned to provide the student with a comprehensive knowledge of public welfare services on the Federal, State and local levels, with an emphasis on the relationships among these governmental units with respect to finance, supervision, staff development, publicity, personnel, etc., and the role of each in the total public welfare program. The course will indicate public welfare trends, with discussion and evaluation of current thinking and legislative activity. The principles governing the sound administration of public welfare services will be brought out as they apply both in public assistance programs, and in the field of institutional care for dependent, neglected, delinquent, mentally ill and criminal groups.

Two-point course

Principles of Group Work.

This course is designed to serve as an introduction to the field of social group work. It will indicate the mutual relatedness of the group work process to the other processes in the field of social practice. Research materials will be used to illustrate group work theories and methods. Case work-group work relationships will be brought out as well as the role of group work in community organization and social action.

Two-point course

Social Welfare Administration.

This course is designed to give the student an insight into social agency management in terms of its purpose and function. Typical existing administrative structures will be used as examples in studying the theory of administration and standard practice in the field. Special emphasis will be put on an analysis of the social welfare executive's job in terms of his responsibility, authority, and relationship to the board, staff and client. An effort will be made to examine the effect of executive action on agency policy, practice, and procedure.

Two-point course

Philosophy of Social Work.

This course is presented to acquaint the social worker with a clear insight into the relationship between Scholastic Philosophy and the objectives of modern social work. From this study a positive philosophy of social work will be formulated. The course brings into sharp relief the Scholastic Philosophy regarding the dignity of the human person, his origin, nature and destiny; the dignity of the family and the rights and duties of its different members, and the dignity of the social worker as a person and as a member of a profession. The principles of individual and social ethics are applied to the specific problems encountered in the field of social work. Unethical standards are evaluated, the current literature of social work is reviewed and analyzed from the standpoint of Scholastic Philosophy. There is also a presentation of case material illustrating the various conflicts that arise in case work relationships.

Two-point course

Family Economics.

This course emphasizes the phases of nutrition and family economics which are helpful in the practice of social work in both public and private agencies. The content includes a discussion of the nutritional requirements of normal children and adults and the modifications made necessary by such factors as food shortages, family income, racial food patterns, illnesses, etc. Family financial counseling in private agencies and the use of standards of assistance in public agencies will also be discussed. Such subjects are the developments of standard budgets, their adaptation to agency practice, consideration of family resources and methods of working with families presenting financial problems will be included.

Two-point course

Advanced Medical Information.

This course is required of all medical social work majors. The content of the course will be concerned with the relation of medical science with the understanding of special diseases, such as tuberculosis, cancer, diseases of the circulatory system, venereal diseases and geriatrics. Some consideration will be given to the public health programs. Special lecturers will be provided who will serve under the direction of the professor of Medical Information. Arrangements will be made for clinical demonstration of material presented.

Two-point course

Psychosomatic Medicine.

This course presupposes material presented in Medical Information I and Psychiatric Information I. The influence of psychic processes upon physiological functions will be studied in detail. Certain special diseases, for example, hypertension, bronchial asthma, peptic ulcer, mucous colitis, etc., will be studied from the viewpoint of their complex causation, both physical and psychic, in order to demonstrate the need for integrating somatic therapy and psychotherapy,

Two-point course

Medical Social Case Work I.

This course is required of all medical social work majors. Teaching will be on a case basis illustrating the meaning of illness to the individual and the interaction of physical, emotional, and social factors. Emphasis will be on the application of case work understanding to problems of illness and medical care.

Two-point course

Medical Social Case Work II.

This course is required of all medical social work majors. Focus will be on the place of the medical social worker in the hospital setting and the community, with discussion of how she determines her role in a situation. There will be reading and lecture material on developments in public medical care, and on the development of medical social case work practice in relation to concurrent developments in the practices of medicine and of generic case work.

Two-point course

Social Aspects of Medicine.

Co-operation of social case work agencies with doctors, nurses, hospitals and health agencies will be discussed, as well as the social workers' responsibility in the promotion of health through support of public health and medical case programs.

One-point course

Psychiatric Case Work.

The main emphasis in this course will be upon the application of psychiatric case work theory to practice with special stress on the correlation between treatment and diagnosis. Cases will be used which demonstrate these points of view. The psychiatric settings represented by the field placements of the students will be the basis for orientation to the differences which exist between various psychiatric theories and procedures.

Two-point course

Child Guidance.

A survey of the normal and atypical child development and behavior. Special emphasis is placed on parent-child and sibling relationships of children in the pre-school, school-attendance and adolescent years. The functions of the child psychiatrist, psychologist and psychiatric social worker in the present-day child guidance clinics are outlined through the medium of actual case discussions.

Two-point course

Social Implications of Mental Testing.

The purpose of this course is to present and familiarize the student with the major concepts and units of measurement which are commonly used in testing intelligence, achievement, personality and aptitude in the educational, clinical, industrial and professional fields. The topics covered include the need for standardized tests, distinguishing characteristics, kinds and uses of tests, their advantages and disadvantages, the technique of testing and interpretation of test results. Present day trends in the testing movement such as psychological service in communities, objectives of the Selective Service Psychiatric Classification, etc., will be discussed. Environmental effects on test results, vocational and educational guidance, and clinical treatment in regard to the application of test results will also be studied. The course will attempt to teach students how to interpret these test results in the various phases of social work,

Two-point course

Supervision.

This course is designed for supervisors. Discussion will be focussed on content of supervision and the use of relationship in the supervisory process. Administrative aspects in supervision will be considered. Students will be given the opportunity to present problems from their own experience. The importance of function in supervision will be explored.

Two-point course

Community Chest-Council Administration I.

For those entering the chest-council field, this course is designed to give the general aspects of the organization management and operation of community chests and councils. The class will work 1. as a committee in developing qualifications and requirements for admission to membership in a chest-council, and 2. as a functional division committee of a council.

Two-point course

Community Chest-Council Administration II.

This course is a continuation of Community Chest-Council Administration I, going deeper into technical administrative functions. The following projects will be undertaken: 1. preparation of a budget procedure, 2. building a detailed campaign organization chart and time schedule, 3. working out a chest accounting system. The executive function will be examined.

Two-point course

Community Organization II.

A continuation of Community Organization I, this course is designed to be specific in the development of community organization principles at local, state, national and international levels, with marked emphasis on problems at the local level. Considerable attention will be devoted to the responsibilities of the professional community organization worker in setting goals and objectives in social work. Case studies of community organization will be used extensively. The place of research and statistics in community organization will be considered. The conference method for determining agency or community action in stated situations will be studied. The responsibility of councils and chests, churches, fraternal and civic groups, labor unions, social welfare and health agencies for social action will be a subject for discussion.

Two-point course

Social Work Interpretation.

This course will consider the place of interpretation in a social work program. The elements that go into the formation of public opinion will be analyzed and particular stress will be laid on methods of arousing public interest for participation in and financing of social work programs. The various media of publicity, such as news and feature stories, speakers, radio, visual education, bulletins and booklets will be reviewed.

Two-point course

Community Health Services.

The first portion of this course is concerned with the organization and services rendered by federal, state and local health departments. The second portion is devoted to the work of voluntary health agencies on a national, state and local level. The third portion is devoted to medical economics with a consideration of medical care and facilities required. Special emphasis is given to the work of the social worker in these fields.

Two-point course

Introduction to Scholastic Philosophy.

For those preparing to take the course in Philosophy of Social Work this course offers a comprehensive view of the main philosophic principles necessary for an adequate understanding of logical processes. The concept of being, the nature of the true and the good, the existence of God, the origin of creatures, the specific characteristics of man and the philosophy of law are treated from the standpoint of the needs of the social worker. The importance of defining objectives before inaugurating a practical philosophy of social work is emphasized throughout. This course is required of all students who have not had a course in scholastic philosophy.

No credit

Seminar for First Year Students.

This seminar is held weekly with the Dean of the School. The purpose of this seminar is to assist the student in the integration of course work and practice. Students assume some responsibility for leadership in discussion.

No credit

Seminar for Second Year Students.

This seminar is held weekly with the Dean of the School. The purpose of this seminar is to assist the student in the integration of course work and practice. Students assume some responsibility for leadership in discussion.

No credit

Master's Thesis.

Each candidate for the degree is required to prepare a thesis. The subject chosen by the student should be related to the particular field of work in which the student is engaged, bearing on specific techniques or problems presented in that field. The candidate is expected to choose a subject that would necessitate the collection and study of original material and will make in some measure a contribution to professional knowledge.

Four points

Thesis Seminar.

All the students who are candidates for the Master's degree are required to take this course during the second year. Each student will present his plan for his thesis. The actual data, as they take shape through the year, will be analyzed and critized by the seminar group.
